Public Participation Training Workshops

Jay Schlinsog from DPN and Dave Ciaccio and Nick Bowden from Community ReDesigned have teamed up to present input plan•it.

Together, the team's members bring more than fifty years of hands-on experience in planning, research and public participation. They'll share hints, tips, tools and resources to more fully engage the community in local planning processes.

Planning Professionals Workshops

Pro level sessions are tailored for planning professionals. These quick-hitting sessions will demonstrate and introduce a variety of public participation examples, tools and resources that can be readily accessed, adapted and applied in local planning processes. Topics include:

- ▶ The importance and benefits of public participation in the planning process.
- ▶ Public participation methods, tools and resources.
- ▶ Design and execution of effective public participation plans.
- ▶ Case studies and models from various size communities.

* The Planning Professional Workshops are pending for certificate maintenance approval for 2.75 credits from the American Institute of Certified Planners.

Stakeholders Sessions

These one-hour sessions are especially geared to city officials and community stakeholders and include:

- ▶ An interactive discussion on the important role that community leaders and stakeholders can play in supporting, promoting and enhancing the public participation process.
- ▶ Examples and case studies illustrating active community engagement and partnerships at work in efforts to create plans and projects that get implemented.
